

Air Conditioning Systems

Low on Freon or Freon flow problem

At this point your system is most likely low on freon or there is a refrigerant flow problem. A refrigerant flow problem would be a problem with an expansion device or restriction in the system somewhere. Another possibility is that your compressor could be damaged and not pumping the refrigerant properly. The best thing to do at this point is to have a service technician come out and check out your system.

Unique solution ID: #1068

Author: Beau Creamer

Last update: 2014-08-05 03:46